

Edit international collaboration and activities

 Email this page

 Related links

Generated by International collaboration and activities

Check all that apply

International Travel ◀ hide info

Will any project personnel be traveling outside of the U.S. for any purpose in support of the project aims?

To the extent that travel plans are known, select the appropriate country/countries and indicate which activities project personnel will be performing in each country. This question applies to travel by any member of the project team, or anyone who is contributing to the completion of the project aims (paid or unpaid, Harvard-affiliated or not).

If you know there will be travel abroad for the purposes of completing the project, but are unsure of the destination at this time, please do not select an option below until destination is known, e.g., at award and/or during the life of the Project. However, please note that you may still need to disclose a foreign component in the proposal and/or progress reports depending on the requirements of the sponsor.

International Collaborators (other than Subaward Recipients) ◀ hide info

Does the project involve collaboration in support of the project aims with an individual who is employed by an international entity, or otherwise engaged outside of the United States, regardless of whether or not they receive any funding from the project or lab?

Select the appropriate country/countries where the work will occur (regardless of the collaborator's nationality) and indicate which activities the collaborator will be performing in each country.

Please exclude collaborations with individuals or entities that will be covered by a formal subaward and are captured as International Subawards under the project.

Establishment of New International Site ◀ hide info

Does the project support the establishment of a new international site?

This may involve utilizing sponsored funds to purchase or lease real estate in-country, or a project scope that requires significant research abroad, such as personnel relocating to a foreign country for multiple months at a time.

View additional guidance

Select the country(ies) in which you anticipate establishing a New International Site:

Use of International Facilities/Instrumentation at an International Site ◀ hide info

During the project, will there be use of existing facilities or instrumentation at a foreign site (as opposed to the Establishment of a New International Site)?

This includes any use of facilities/instrumentation outside of the U.S. by Harvard personnel, or by a collaborator, vendor or subrecipient, in connection with the project. Any payment to individuals or entities in support of such use, or for similar services essential to the research, including via a services/vendor agreement, should also be captured.

Payments to a formal subrecipient and/or use by such subrecipient of its own facilities/instrumentation/equipment should be excluded and captured under International Subagreements.

View additional guidance

International shipment/transfer/exchange of research materials, data and/or equipment ◀ hide info

Please indicate if the project will involve any of the following:

- the shipment or transfer of equipment, software, or technology;
- the shipment of biological, chemical or radioactive samples; or
- the transfer of data (other than through publication)

In each case, to or from an international collaborator, subrecipient, vendor, or other international location.

While these transactions may be conducted under a variety of agreement types (e.g., International Subagreement, material transfer agreement, data use agreement, etc.), the response should indicate "what" is being exchanged internationally.

View additional guidance

Foreign National ◀ hide info

Will any foreign nationals be working on the project (in either a paid or unpaid capacity)?

For the purpose of this question, foreign nationals are individuals who are citizens of any country other than the United States. This includes individuals studying and/or working at Harvard on a student or work visa.

Individuals who hold U.S. permanent residency status (i.e. holders of a green card) or who have been deemed "protected individuals" (e.g. refugees or persons seeking asylum) are not considered foreign nationals for the purpose of this question.

View additional guidance

International Human Subjects and/or Animal Research ◀ hide info

Does the project involve human subjects and/or animal research at an international site?

Please note, this question is for reporting purposes and does not function as a substitute any relevant review, e.g., IRB and/or IACUC.

View additional guidance

Select the countries in which you anticipate performing human subjects and/or animal research, and the activity to be performed.

– OR –

None of the above apply

Cancel

Save

The screen you are on is: SCR0669EditInternational | Top | Contact GMAS | Privacy statement

Server: gmas-app1.prod.atsea.cloud.huit.harvard.edu/10.137.214.180

This is release 1.54.04. Last built 09/10/20 02:54 PM |

© Copyright 2015 by the President and Fellows of Harvard College.